Project Update:

The applicants sought support for the ‘new Scottish talent’ element of their Street Café which was a ‘free to the public’ musical offering taking place daily outside the National Piping Centre during the International Piping Festival.

Brief Resume:

Over the course of the event a number of groups and individuals performed for the public.

Outcome/Aims:

The activity focused on two major outcomes of providing free music to the general public and providing an opportunity for young local musicians to showcase their talent. At performance times the Street Café was filled to capacity and saw locals, national and international visitors able to enjoy the best of Scotland’s young musicians and their new music.
